EDMONTON BULLETIN, NOVEMBER 22nd, 1896

THE MINISTER OF INTERIOR.

The news that the position of minister of interior has at last been filled will be received with pleasure throughout the Northwest, for a number of reasons: Because there should not be longer delay in laying down the policy upon which the land and other resources of the Northwest are to be administered by the new government; because the appointment of the minister means that a settlement of the Manitoba school question between the Dominion and provincial governments has been arrived at; and because the gentleman who has been called upon to take the position is universally conceded to be eminently capable of filling it with credit to himself and advantage to the country. Satisfaction at the office being permanently filled is no reflection upon the gentleman who discharged the very difficult and delicate duties of acting minister from the time of the new government taking office until the present. Hon. Mr. Scott's position was particularly trying. To a man well up in years, discharging the duties of two departments, and one of them certainly the most intricate if not the most important in the cabinet, was no ordinary task. But Hon. Mr. Scott's uniform kindness of disposition, his careful attention to detail and infinite capacity for taking pains, coupled with a large experience in administering the crown lands of Ontario, enabled him to discharge the onerous duties of the interior department as well as they could be discharged by anyone, who was hampered by a position which, while being pressed for changes, prevented him from laying down any new propositions for fear they might not meet the views of his permanent successor. Hon. Mr. Sifton is not hampered by this consideration, he has had a life time of western experience, he has shown administrative ability of a high order, and the West looks to him for an active policy in the interests of the settlers, which are the interests of settlement. No doubt he will be tendered plenty of advice, and the loudest scream will be for an immigration policy that will fill up the country. On this point the BULLETIN ventures to remark that the first thing to be done is to undo as far as possible the mistakes of former administrations. The next is to hold the population we have by giving them fair opportunity and assistance to secure a measure of prosperity. Let the settler be given to understand that the country is his and that the best in it is none too good for him. Let him be given to understand that he is expected to work for his own advantage and not for that of somebody else. This is the feature of our immigration policy which has been lacking in the past, and because it has been lacking all the smooth tongued agents that could be sent to any quarter of the world could not make immigration a success. Then, when efforts are made directly to attract outsiders, let quality rather than numbers be the point aimed at. A thousand ill conditioned immigrants only make a festering sore on the face of the country. They go away themselves and arouse distrust and discontent in others. One good family which achieves success is worth more than a thousand shiftless ne'er-do-weels, and will constitute a point of attraction for other immigrants of like kind. In the past Canada has held its immigration field too cheap, as though it were only good enough for those who were not good enough, or able, to go anywhere else. The Northwest is good enough for the best people in the world if properly handled, and it should be so handled as to be made fit for such people. Then and not till then they will come. The change of political views by the people of the west as expressed at the late election meant that the old policy and the old style of administration was unsatisfactory. A change was wanted and Hon. Mr. Sifton, young and yet experienced, energetic yet of sound judgment, talented and still practical, may be confidently expected to bring about a satisfactory change.

CIVIC AFFAIRS.

Up to the young men's meeting of last Wednesday night there has been a very discreditable apathy regarding civic affairs in town this year, considering the near approach of the elections. It may be that the change of date for the elections unsettled the calculations of most of the ratepayers. At any rate very little has been said considering that nominations are only two weeks from to-morrow. The BULLETIN does not advocate discussion for discussion's sake, nor for the purpose of finding fault with the course of events in the past, but so that those who pay the taxes shall have a clear idea of the purposes to which those taxes shall be applied during the ensuing year. A municipal corporation is to a certain extent a business enterprise, somewhat on the lines of a joint stock company, and it is only business that there should be a stock taking every year and on the basis of the knowledge derived by that stock taking a policy decided upon for the coming year. The discussion usually incident on the selection of a mayor and councillors is the municipal stock taking. Then the public interest is aroused on behalf of their several favorites for seats at the council and matters which were passed over in silence at the time they occurred are dug up and trotted around. This is how the ordinary taxpayer finds out how his money has gone and enables him to reach a conclusion as to how he wishes it to go in the future. It is a bad thing for any town when the taxpayers do not take an active interest in its affairs. If those who are interested do not run it those who are not will, and the results are not likely to be in favor of the most deeply interested parties. Whatever were the objects or will be the results of Wednesday night's meeting the fact that it showed a deep interest on the part of ratepayers who had hitherto taken no very active part in municipal affairs is for good, and to be commended.

In considering the present position of Edmonton it is to be remembered that it has been carried on as a municipality under very unfavorable conditions. The scattered situation of the buildings necessitated a much greater amount of grading and sidewalks and consequent expense than would ordinarily have been necessary on an equal assessment. The same conditions prevail regarding fire protection. Besides this, in the first year or two there was an uncontrollable tendency to discount the future, or in other words to boom. On the idea that they would soon be necessary in any case, expenditures were made and burdens assumed that existing circumstances did not justify and do not yet. After having paid taxes on account of these extras for a number of years it seems to be about time for the ratepayers to consider whether they are justified in continuing to pay for what can be done without. It should be remembered that within the past two years the necessary uncontrollable expenditure on behalf of the ratepayers who compose the town, although not upon the town as a town, has been increased by the erection of a splendid school building; and the expenses in that regard are liable to a necessary and indeed desirable increase from time to time.

In studying economy it is well to guard against false economy. There is such a thing as being penny wise and pound foolish. Edmonton has invested heavily in fire protection appliances. When the debt for these purposes was being incurred the BULLETIN thought that the money could have been better applied towards securing either a bridge or improved railway facilities. However the debt has been incurred and the money applied to a very complete and efficient apparatus. While all due economy should be used in the maintenance of the fire department, economy should not be pushed beyond the line of efficiency. It would be poor policy to pay ten or twelve hundred dollars a year interest on fire appliances and then not get efficient services from them for lack of an expenditure of a few hundred dollars more or less.

What is wanted in a general way is on the one hand to cut down the running expenses of the town to the lowest possible point consistent with absolute requirements, and on the other hand make such expenditures as are absolutely necessary for the welfare of the town at large. The bridge question has been the great question for this town ever since it was incorporated. Indeed the first reason for incorporation was for the purpose of enabling the town to ensure, by granting aid, the early construction of a bridge. That is five years ago, and although we have piled up a fair amount of indebtedness and expended directly several thousands of dollars towards the bridge and railway, we have no more bridge or railway than when we started, and by reason of the indebtedness since incurred are not in as good a position to get either as we were then. While we have lost in this particular we have gained in that the government is committed to the bridge project in one shape or another. Hitherto each successive council started in to get the bridge or railway, but before it had gone far that question was sidetracked by something or less, but more immediate, interest. It is to be hoped that the council to be elected on December 15th will go in pledged to see the scheme through in one shape or another before the completion of their term of office.

Other matters such as the establishment of a market and the aiding of mills, might well claim the attention of the new council. But if any one of the old councils had dropped every other project for the year and secured the bridge or railway we would now be further ahead; and the new council had better do that than be led off into other lines and allow the bridge question to hang fire again.

For the information of the Manitoba Free Press the BULLETIN begs to say that the progress of the Edmonton district during the past sixteen years is due to the natural advantages of the country and the enterprise and energy of the people, and not to the policy of land reserves and railway monopoly of the late government as the Free Press would have its readers believe. By the way, speaking of walls as to the lack of satisfactory progress of the Northwest, who has wailed so loudly as the Free Press about the lack of population, a lack which it feels so grievously that it disinterestedly advocates the purchase by the government of the lands granted to railway companies in order that they may be offered as free grants to induce settlers to come. If this heroic policy is necessary, surely the policy of granting the lands must have been as great a mistake and drawback as the BULLETIN ever said it was.

A NEWSPAPER figures out that a change of 23,000 votes could have elected Bryan over McKinley as president of the United States, had the change taken place in and been properly distributed over California, Delaware, Indiana, Kentucky, Oregon, South Dakota, West Virginia and Wyoming, which gave 57 electoral votes to McKinley. McKinley's total majority in Wyoming, South Dakota and Kentucky was 1,000, and by this narrow popular majority he carried 20 electoral votes.

OPEN UP KOOTENAY.

Toronto Telegram.
Israel Tarte may do the country a good turn by looking into the Crow's Nest railway question. Only by way of the defile through the Rockies can the Kootenay country be opened up to Canadians. It is not right that Spokane, in the State of Washington, should be the base of supplies for the Canadian mining region. It is stated that even now Spokane has such a grasp on the trade that, even with the construction of the railway through the pass, it will be difficult for Canadians to secure it.
The Crow's Nest pass is a canal on dry land. The government should build the road, and should charge fair rates to the railways using the line. Once through the pass, there would be no objection to granting franchises to private companies. The mining region can never be done full justice to until the cost of getting supplies into it is materially lessened. The Canadian Pacific, in 1899, much gold that was taken up in the mining camps, that was never of any value in opening up the country, would have been put into proper channels. The Federal administration can do nothing this year. Next spring should see the surveyors at work, and within a twelvemonth trains should be running through the pass into the land of Ephraim.

GENERAL NEWS.

Madame Albani will sing in Calgary on January 20.
Winnipeg Commercial, Vancouver Nov. 10: There has been practically no change in the market. The promised raise in grain has at this writing really not taken place, although hay is selling in Victoria at $12 and wheat is scarce and said to be worth $20 a ton. Oats are being held by farmers for higher prices. Again higher prices all round are being predicted for next week. Vancouver butter has jumped three cents since the last market report, which has hardened the price for the reported article. There has been an eighth of a cent decline in the price of sugar. Apples are coming in from Ontario so fast that it is feared that the local apples will not only be crowded out but that the eastern apples will be a glut on the market. They can be bought here now for $3.75 a barrel.

Commercial, Nov. 14: Advice from the country are very favorable. Country merchants at most points are reported to be doing a better business than for some years, with a larger proportion of cash business going. Exceptions are in districts which were swept by the big hail storm last summer, or points where the crops were below the average. Cattle exports are keeping up tolerably well. The price of wheat, which is moving eastward, to take advantage of the lake and rail rates before the close of navigation, which is now drawing near. Though winter has now set in, some parties of immigrants are still arriving in the prairie, which is higher, oats very strong, hides and wool higher, butter strong to higher, staple groceries very firm and tending higher.

Winnipeg Commercial Nov. 15: Wheat—Local situation.—Prices have been considerably higher and very irregular in Manitoba than in the west, prices paid to farmers for best samples of hard wheat varying at different points and on different days from 65 to 75 cents, while at a few markets prices ranging up to 80 to 90 cents were paid, and in a few cases over 90 cents was paid. Of course these extreme prices only lasted for a short time at any one point but the fact that such prices have been reached, shows how wild the market has been here, and this has been about the situation here all this season. Notwithstanding these high prices, in some cases being even higher than prices at Chicago, the farmers show a disposition to hold their wheat, and it is believed that considerable wheat in store is held by farmers still.

Winnipeg Commercial Nov. 15: Oats.—Prices continue to be held very firm locally, and the market here is much above an export basis. Some dealers appear to believe that there is a shortage in the crop below requirements, and they are storing rather than cut present prices. There is a great scarcity of oats fit for milling in the new crop, the quality being so light and chaffy. Car lots on track here have been quoted from 24 cents per bushel of 34 pounds for common feed quality up to 28 cents for choice white. Some have been placed in store here rather than sell at under 25 cents for No. 2 mixed, 24 to 24½c. having been offered. In Manitoba country markets about 15 to 16 cents is paid to farmers, and 20 cents to farmers in Winnipeg, local farmers' offerings being poor quality. In Southern Manitoba there are no oats offering and the crop there appears to have been very light. In Ontario the oat crop is large and prices are low.

Calgary Herald: At about half past three on Thursday afternoon Nov. 12th, Superintendent Howe placed in a private drawer in the safe a large sum of cash and other money which was intended for deposit in the bank, but it was a few minutes too late to be banked that day. The drawer was locked, as was also the safe, which contained other sums intended for the men's pay. On the safe being re-opened on Friday morning nothing unusual was observed at first, but on the drawer being opened for the purpose of sending the deposit to the bank it was discovered that some $650 in cash and cheques had been taken, along with a quantity of private papers and letters. There were no marks of violence and it was plain the robbery had been carried out with consummate skill. Payment of the cheques was immediately stopped and prompt measures taken to trace the crime, but as yet we are unable to make any announcement as to their success. Some of the cheques taken were contractors' deposits. Unless the money is discovered the total loss will fall on Superintendent Howe.

The Toronto Telegram correspondent speaking of the alleged coal find at Sudbury, Ontario, says the people are not at all disheartened by the opinions of the geologists. Many of them remember, and one of the men who was on the spot at the time tells how two doctors of the geological survey at Ottawa stood at the point where the railway cutting broke into the nickel bed at which is now locally known as the "Murray Mine." A practical man thought that the ore disclosed by the cutting were worth something. The two doctors of geology declared that the ore was nothing. By order of the C. P. R. seven or eight boxes were filled with the ore and shipped to Prof. Girdwood, of McGill University at Montreal. His report coincided exactly with the opinion of the geologists, who held that the find in the cutting was worthless. Acting on the advice of its geologists the C. P. R. did not locate a claim on the mineral land extending from the cut. The practical experience of a prospector led him to locate the claim which the C. P. R. overlooked at the instance of its experts. In a few months this claim changed hands for $35,000, and is now owned by the Vivians, of Swansea, Wales, and in operation has proved to be one of the richest nickel mines in the district.

WHITFORD SETTLEMENT.

Snow fell here on Friday, Nov. 6th, 1899, and now covers the ground to an average depth of seven inches. The river is frozen and so the ferries have resigned in favor of Jack Frost Bridge Company, (unlimited).

At Victoria one day last week, a horse slipped and fell on the ice while crossing. It broke through the ice but was safely hauled ashore by another horse. The bridge is quite safe now however.
